• British, Greeks Open Assault on Leftists

By GEORGE ANDROULAKAKES

ATHENS, Dec. 6.—(UPI)—British and Greek forces supporting the government of Premier George Papandreu opened a two-pronged assault on the notorious EAM leftists, and in the first outrush captured EAM headquarters and the central offices of the Communist party.

The Government forces seized the Yanakiev buildings in Constitution Square, the main center of resistance in the Eam, the main army of the Eam, in this part of the city. The British fell upon the Eam struggle, in which an Eam lieutenant-colonel and a major were arrested.

An official announcement said the general assault timed at 10:30 pressing the Eam forces opened at 10:30 and by 11 a.m. the communists had been captured. Four hundred Eam men, including some Bulgars, hoisted their white flag.

INTENSE FIGHTING
The British, largely trained in half dozen sectors of Athens, with British and Greek government forces moved to put down an uprising by the Eam, which had been fighting EAM or National Liberation Front. EAM headquarters surrendered after putting up a stubborn resistance when the British tanks and bombing forces moved in. The tanks of the EAM youth were captured on Page 2, Col. 7

Senate Sitting
Is Adjourned
To January 31

OTTAWA, Dec. 6.—(CP)—Senate sitting over Christmas is special sitting on overseas reinforcements and adjourned to Jan. 31.

Dr. J. King, government Senate leader, moving the adjournment, said it was apparent there would be no session of the Senate. Consideration of the budget would be dealt with by the upper house. Senator W. A. Griesbach (PC) Abitibi, however, said Canadians were being asked to pay too high a price for national defense and the rule of the majority should be ensured.

NATIONAL LEADERSHIP
Senator J. A. Calder (PC) Saskatchewan urged the Senate to consider the overseas reinforcements from a national viewpoint. Opponents to conscription could be found in all provinces.

Senator Calder said members of the house did not seem to be found in all provinces.

OTTAWA, Dec. 6.—(CP)—The CBC announced last night that the Conservative party would like to be invited to an address by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

"Dr. King is seeking revenge—the blood of his relict grandfather is in his veins and I think he would like to speak to Cardinal Villeneuve," said the British eryman in an address at Winnipeg. "It would be natural for him to think that there is some reaction in this country now that King is in his last days."

Mr. Shields said for three hours and repeated generally charges made in earlier addresses that house defense and overseas reinforcements would not be drafted from Quebec province, that the Liberal party would not be invited to speak at the Conservative party would like to be invited to speak.

Won't Extend
Life of House
Beyond Term

OTTAWA, Dec. 6.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said today in the Commons "nothing is further from my mind" than an extension of the life of the present parliament beyond its constitutional term.

He was answering Gordon Gray, Ontario Liberal leader, who said the government's term would end April 17.

Mr. King said he did not favor a general election in wartime. But he does not believe that the life of parliament beyond limits set by the constitution. He always has stood against extension of the life of parliament and has done so.

As far as I am concerned, I wish to assure the House nothing is further from my mind at this time than an extension of the term of the present parliament," he continued.

"Inducement" Scored

Charge of Discrimination Against Former Volunteers Made in Manpower Debate

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, Dec. 6.—(CP)—A charge that the government's new manpower legislation, which has voluntary inducements offered to men defence troops to volunteer now, was made yesterday in the Commons by John Diefenbaker (PC, Lake Centre) as debate on the government's overseas conscription legislation up.

Mr. Diefenbaker said representations were being made to men in the R.C.A.F., military camp that if they volunteer now they will have their date of enlistment deferred so that they will be given the volunteer service medal after 12 months instead of 18 months. This voluntary service and that NRMA non-commissioned officers will be concerned in the debate.

"This is a conflict in discrimination against the men who volunteered in the service of their country," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker was followed by Arthur Slaght, KC (L-Perry Sound, Ont.) who accused the Progressive Conservative government of having two horses on the conscription issue and called its leader, John Brocken, "imorous."

BRIEF EXCHANGE
This was followed by a brisk exchange of interpellations as Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, trying to reply on a question of privilege, was told Slaght was interrupting the route and of tupe of poinciana politics" and called on Hughes Cleaver (Lethbridge) to "get out of the house to come out from behind the barn."

Mr. Graydon never completed his question of privilege and told his colleagues he had interrupted several times. He said it was the "first time" the house had received a question of privilege.

McSlaght based his assertion on the Progressive Conservative amendment calling for making all NRMA men available for service in any theater of war and a subsequent speech of Hon. R. H. Hanson (PC, Victoria) in which he said: "I am not including Japan as one of those theatres of war because that is another question."

BRACKEN RIDES
A. G. Smith and Mr. Slaght, John Bracken, national leader, was "riding behind the gallery clock" but neither he nor Mr. Hanson, who spoke on the house leader, had made any clarification.

Mr. Slaght said he came to Ottawa prepared to see if the government if it did not take action to send reinforcements overseas. He was satisfied, he said, that Gen. MacKenzie King and the government had taken the right course and that he had done his duty as a member of the house. He would vote with the government. He had full confidence in Gen. McNaughton.

On the other side, during the afternoon sitting were Armand Chouquette (PC, Sudbury) who said his party was opposed to the draft of conscription and so would vote against the government and Hon. D. A. Bruce (PC, Sudbury) who wanted a change of government and an election.

WANT ALL OUT ACTION
Dr. Bruce, the Canadian wanted all men to be made available. The 18,000 home defense troops to be sent overseas under the government's plan was not enough.

Mr. Diefenbaker also delved into history when he argued that conscription had been used in Canada in the Militia Act since 1865 and that the law had been framed by French-Canadian leaders. He also argued that men called up were not sent overseas. He said that parliament was now proceeding much as it would have done if action were taken under the Militia Act.

He called the present order-in-council "selective conscription" and breeders should not perpetuate the inequalities of service and sacrifice which derive from the National Resources Mobilization Act.

"Today," he said, "this country, as a result of the unfitness in which the administration has handled its national resources, Mobilization Act has been conducted to try to legitimate grievances, accompanied by prejudice and by senseless bigotry."

DEMANDS EQUALITY

"I ask the government, even at this late hour, to ensure that all provinces of Canada shall be equal under this administration for only through equality among all the provinces can we have a real unity and by equality I mean equality in service as well as in protection."

Mr. Diefenbaker said there seemed to be no unity in the cabinet on the matter of conscription and added:

"Unity there must be, if this legislation is to be enforced fearlessly, definitely and assuredly, to the end that reinforcement status overseas."

He said that war services minister LaFleche had said he hoped not that the Canadian conscript would be sent overseas, that they should go as volunteers.

FEEL BETRAYED
Justice Minister St. Laurent had said Nov. 6 that he was convinced if the government adopted conscription the vast majority of the province of Quebec would be betrayed by their English-speaking fellow citizens. Fisheries Minister Herriman had said Nov. 8, there were no men to be conscripted.

Munitions Minister Howe had said in Chicago Nov. 16, that the question was political rather than a question of meeting an urgent need.

He asked what hope was there of implementation of the draft order in the hands of a cabinet member, as McNaughton, a political, the fallen idol, the idol with feet of clay?

Canada needed the assurance of the Canadian government that in the administration of the conscription of Canada will be represented according to population, as nearly as possible, he said.

Gen. McNaughton, in reply, said:

"I think it would be worth your while (the Speaker's) while to listen to what the honorable member for Etobicoke said.

He said that if I have not interrupted him time and again in his references to Gen. McNaughton, the fallen idol, the idol with feet of clay."

He came home, was promoted after coming home, and on top of that he treated himself to a cabinet position with a salary of $12,500 a year.

"FEET OF CLAY."

That is not what McNaughton the soldier, the idol of the army, the idol in the hands of a cabinet member, as McNaughton, the fallen idol, the idol with feet of clay?"

Tuberculosis Tests

The provincial department of health is giving free tuberculosis tests to the members of Edmonton Motors buildings at the corner of 100th and 102nd streets.

Every Edmonton person who has the shadow of a suspicion about his or her respiratory condition, who has a family history of tuberculosis or who has been exposed to the disease should take immediate advantage of this service.

The time taken by the test is brief; it can be completed in ten minutes. And the diagnosis is sure and certain.

This diagnostic clinic is part of the campaign being staged to stamp out tuberculosis in the city. This area is extremely important part of the campaign. For the fact that militates most strongly against man's efforts to abolish the disease is the reluctance of potential sufferers to realize or admit themselves that they are ill.

Tuberculosis, taken in the earlier stages, may definitely be cured. The campaign, therefore, will be effective in the degree it is accorded the cooperation of the public.

Snow Plus Sand

Maybe there isn't anything better to be done about it than to sprinkle sand on the sidewalks and roadways after a fresh fall of snow. But that surely makes one awfully tired.

The sand is the sand of snow which is churned up into a mix of mud and silt at every street intersection, making walking and driving more difficult and more dangerous rather than less. If mild weather comes the unhappy blend packs down, but with a vengeance. And snow, once it has been compacted, is a pain.

Somebody in the city hall or outside should try to think up some other way of handling the problem of providing winter traction for the city's pavements and the tires of our cars. The sand treatment is a doubtful improver of traction a good part of the time, and an infuriating nuisance to housewives and janitors most of the time.

Call for Nurses

The Alberta Association of Registered Nurses is promoting a campaign this week to ensure a greater enrolment for nursing in the province.

There are three nursing courses offered: first, the three-year course in any general hospital; second, the four-year course at the mental hospital in Ponoka; third, the five year course given by the University of Alberta leading to a nursing degree.

All these give invaluable training which guarantees a good income and a respected place in the life of any community.

The nursing courses are well paid, the true reward of any nurse must be a sense of duty exceedingly well done. For what other profession, outside the teaching profession, can give to women the satisfaction of making a positive contribution to the welfare of others?

The services of a nurse are real and tangible. They are constructive. They are compassionate. They are essential. Practically every woman, not only in good health, but in the infirm life, go into the qualifications for a nurse.

This special call for nurses should have a wide response. For there is no higher calling to which a woman can devote herself.

Markets Govern Income

Speaking at the convention of the Union of Manitoba Municipalities last week, Premier Garson emphasized the relationship between the cost of living and internal conditions. He pointed out that 1,400,000 persons are involved in the trade which Canadians carry on with other countries, while only half this number are engaged in the manufacturing industry. In this connection he said:

"The time is long overdue when we should start thinking of the interests of this 1,400,000, rather than thinking exclusively of the interests of the 700,000 in the secondary manufacturing industry. Foreign trade is important because it is by far the largest factor in determining the size of our national income. In the depression years, export trade accounted directly for 28 per cent of Canada's income. Today, in wartime prosperity, it accounts for 34 per cent of our income."

This comparison is not only a statement of economic fact, but is the recognition of cause and effect. Ten years ago Canadians were in desperate plight because they could not find buyers for their products. They are enjoying prosperity now because there are markets for all they can produce.

But ten years ago there were approximately as many people in Canada as there are now. It has not been in the home market that the increased demand for products originated, but in the markets abroad. Of course the home demand for goods now is greater, but the main reason it is greater is the outside demand for war and other essential supplies. External and internal factors are playing possible. Both have boosted the national income—unto unprecedented levels.

The world war was the main factor in creating the present enormous demand abroad for Canadian products. But the world war had its own causes. The increased demand had been created by any other cause. It is fanciful to suppose that our export sales in peace time can be on the gigantic scale of our war exports.

But there cannot be a return to the pre-war export efforts in coming to reach the level of the better. Full employment can be realized only through heavy production, and heavy production cannot be maintained unless the goods can be sold. This follows: that Canadian industries will have to either cultivate and maintain a larger trade than we have ever carried on with the peoples of other countries. Only so can it be possible to secure a national income comparable to that of war, and to support the average standard of living to which wartime has accustomed us.

As Premier Garson put it, we shall have to pay more attention to the 1,400,000 whose interests are involved in the carrying of foreign trade. The cost of carrying on this exclusive way of life is the interests of the 700,000 who are engaged in manufacturing industries.

France and Russia were allies long before Hitler set his war machinery in motion. General de Gaulle is visiting Moscow, no doubt with a view to restoring the alliance, made imperative for four years by Nazi control of France. And to make sure that the French are not the Provisional Government having a share in policing Germany after it surrenders.

U.S. secretary of the treasury, Morgenthau, is one of those who make Germany keep pace in world to de-industrialize the country. It may not be the method he had in mind, but that is what the Allied armies are aiming to do in their attack on the Saar district of the Ruhr.

Others are in Allied possession the heavy industry of the Reich will have been reduced by as much as 70 per cent, it is estimated. When and on what conditions the areas will be handed back can be laid down in the peace treaty.

In the event of it being decided to send a detachment of Mounties to the Yukon, it is considered that this will be far more expedient than via St. Michael's, as it will save a month in time.

Then there is the postman. I guess he is high school age, from 5 to 9 and get $30 a month in the post office and I guess there is many more.
